

Target's "Party for Good" Did a Lot of Good!

Posted At : July 15, 2010 11:18 AM | Posted By : Food Bank Staff

Related Categories: Food Bank Friends, Volunteering, Events & Campaigns

by Brian Pham

On June 28, the Food Bank For New York City had the pleasure of participating in and benefiting from Target's "Party for Good," an exciting event that was held at an undeveloped warehouse on the East River. The party was in honor of the attendees, facilitators and supporters of the National Conference of Volunteering and Services, where leaders in the volunteering and service world met for three days to share best practices and participate in informative workshops.

Not only did Target throw a terrific party for the "volunteer coordinators of the world," but they also included a HUGE volunteer activity that night! Partying and volunteering – is there any other better combination?

Party attendees packaged 150,000 meals that were distributed to children and families at the Food Bank's member soup kitchens and food pantries across the five boroughs. Who knew that a party could be so good while doing so much good?

Watch this video to see what the warehouse looked like before and after Target decorated it, along with some clips of the party in action.

Thank you to Target for hosting such a brilliant event, and to everyone who attended!

From top: One of two areas where attendees packed meals; volunteers in action (some attendees packed three to five boxes each!); one of many warehouse-themed decorations at the party.